Prices are F.O.B. mill, excluding freight

Another week, another mill curtailment to try to get lumber supply in line with less than stellar demand. Again it's a Canadian producer, and we will see if the cumulative effect has much impact. Last week saw secondaries buy in heavier than they have in months, mainly the office wholesalers. This week the mills raised prices, but found themselves selling against their own wood. Pretty much the same story with OSB - too much for too few.
